Art Knows No Color Line

This musical season's "eminent soloists" have been announced by Walter Damrosch's New York Symphony Orchestra. The list is really an outstanding one: Sergei Rachmaninoff, Alfred Cortot, Paul Kochanski, Florence Easton, etc., and neither least nor last, Roland Hayes, our own Roland Hayes. Music, silencer that it is of the passions of men and of races, has again asserted itself, and called the black tenor to expound vocal art to thousands of hearers whose minds and souls recognize that art, real, true art, has no color line.

Rachmaninoff, the Russian; Cortot, the Frenchman; Barrere, the Italian; Salmond, the German; Easton, the American, and Hayes, the American with a colorful prefix, will unloosen their musical souls to audiences which comprise the principal individual nationalities of the world; and the little tenor's throat will guide tonal sounds containing no evidence of the African blood which courses through his veins.

Is music holier than the other bonds of human relations? Does not art exist in everything which God has made possible for the earthy repose of our souls and the enlightenment of our mortal selves? Yes, undoubtedly yes. Yet we must rejoice at the advent of Hayes and the New York Symphony Orchestra under the great Damrosch, and we must honor the God-given art of Hayes, which makes him a mediator between the foes of racial peace. Here and there, we venture to say, there are other Eastons and Rachmaninoffs of dark hue. Here and there, if you'll only look carefully, there live thousands of black folk in every path of life, crying out for the chance to show their advent in the world's market places and in the hearts of all who firmly believe that Thy Kingdom will come. Sometime, somehow, they'll share in one hundred per cent American civilization.

Bleese Repents

Cole Bleese of South Carolina has come back politically, having received the nomination for United States Senator in the recent primary election in his state. Bleese and Ben Tillman, it will be recalled, rode into the halls of Congress, besides controlling their state, for many years, by abusing and slandering of the colored race. Tillman is dead and Bleese has been resurrected from his several years' retirement, during which time he surely must have been converted. During the campaign no words of vilification or abuse of the colored people publicly fell from his lips. His election is a foregone conclusion. It is hoped that Bleese may continue to exhibit the spirit of repentance when he is seated in the august body at Washington, D. C.

Register, Register!

On October 4th the registration books will close and if you have not registered by that time you cannot vote in the election November 4th without resorting to other means provided by law. Information about registering, measures and candidates and their political affiliations can be obtained at the COOLIDGE FOR PRESIDENT HEADQUARTERS, 314 Macleay Bldg.

Editors and Politics

It has been charged that the editorial policy of newspapers is purchasable; that publishers and editors will give their support to certain candidates and parties if they are paid for that support, and will not, if they are not thus favored. No doubt instances can be found where this is true, but the rule is the reverse.

Our observation will suggest that editors are fellows of pretty strong convictions, who seldom do that kind of thing. The average editor and publisher who is in the business does not have money making as his first object; if he did he would find other occupations that would yield better returns. But there is a peculiar lure in the game that attracts men with the newspaper instinct. One of its rewards is ability to take part in directing public opinion. A man who is interested in human progress and likes to express himself, values highly the chance to speak his mind in a newspaper. If he is asked to sell out this privilege, it is like asking him to sell out one of the dearest things in his life. Of course, when men are associated with each other in the newspaper production, either as partners or employer and employee, someone must decide what the newspaper shall say, and he must sometimes yield his own ideas to meet the views of his associates. But as a rule men of sympathetic views tend to come together. Newspapers, of course, frequently print as political advertising, views to which they do not agree, but it is generally customary to indicate that such notices are admitted advertising. It seems a broad and liberal policy to admit such contrary views, to a publication, but those who seek to express them ought to pay a reasonable price for the opportunity to get them before the public.

Firpo Will Not Be Deported Now.

Since Harry Wills beat up Firpo you don't hear any more talk about deporting the "Wild Bull of the Pampas." The white people knew in advance that Firpo was in for a terrible flogging at the hands of Mr. Wills, and to save him they attempted to send him out of the country, but the fact that he remained and got a beating, the holler about him being deported is dead forever, and Mr. Firpo can stay until he gets good and ready to leave.

The colored voters who are running away from Coolidge to Davis, better get into the Coolidge band wagon and ride to victory.

The race for city commissioner may yet develop into a red hot campaign battle as they say Edward G. Gavin, who has announced himself as a candidate for that office, is a mighty popular and well known business man of high standing.

The Democratic party missed the golden opportunity of its life in electing its candidate for president this year, when it failed to nominate Al Smith of New York.

"As Maine goes, so goes the nation." If this be true, which has seldom failed, if ever, Mr. Coolidge will be re-elected president of the United States.

Williams Avenue Y.W.C.A. Notes

The High School Reserves will hold their Installation Service for new officers on Thursday, October 2nd, at 5 P. M., and their first Sunday Social Hour on Sunday, October the 5th, from 4 to 6 P. M.

The Mothers' Club held a very interesting meeting on September the 15th.

The Blue Triangle Club entertained a group of friends on Friday evening. The Y. W. C. A. was attractively decorated in blue and orange crepe paper.

The public is invited to attend the Membership Tea on October the 7th from 3 to 5 P. M. Miss F. Keeney, General Secretary; Mrs. G. F. Wilson, President; Mrs. E. S. Collins, Chairwoman of Colored Work, and other members of the local Y. W. C. A. will be present.

The Grade School Reserves are to elect their officers on Saturday afternoon.

The various clubs are very much interested in the Carnival of Nations which is being sponsored by the Old Rose Club and under the direction of Mrs. Anna Peck.

DOINGS OF THE ELKS

The two days' Elks carnival held at the Stag Club Monday and Tuesday nights, went over the top big. Games, dancing and fun galore were indulged in by the large number who attended. This goes to show that the trustees and building committee of the lodge know their stuff.

Bill Bob Lawrence, who has been confined to his home from illness for a week or so, is able to be up and around.

Rev. W. L. Sledge, father of the Grand Rapids, Michigan, lodge of Elks, will, while in the city, speaking for Coolidge, tell the brother Bills all the secrets of Elkdom.

A number of Bills and Dts. visited the Elks home, 318 Williams Ave., on last Saturday evening.

Some single ladies were heard to say that they wish they could join the St. Elks. Why, that's easy. All they have to do is to vamp or fandangle some of the single Bills of Rose City lodge and send in their applications and the Daughters will do the rest.

Among the Daughters indisposed this week is Dr. Rachael Young, 376 Williams Ave. Dr. Martha J. Strain, while improved, at her home, 225 Meade St., is not permitted to go out on the street cars and, therefore, Dr. Strain would appreciate it if some of the Dts. who have automobiles would come out and give her a ride.

HOTEL NOTES

Louis Wachstein, a bell hop at the McAlpin, New York, committed suicide after betting all his savings on Firpo in the Wills-Firpo battle, when he learned that his bet had failed.

Girls were placed on the elevators as operators at The Portland Tuesday morning to take the places of men. This is the first time this has happened in the 36 years of the hotel's existence.

Eugene P. Carr, captain of bell hops at The Portland, was quietly married Monday evening to Miss Nannie Maud Ivey. To celebrate the event, the groom took a few days' layoff.

John Hampshire, a capitalist of Grants Pass, was a guest at The Portland a few days this week.

Henry Gibson, veteran waiter, has returned to the city after several months' absence at Bozant Tavern, Hayden Lake, Idaho.
