

NOTED TEACHER TELLS MANY ENGAGED BELIEFS SUPREME COURT SANCTIONS SEGREGATION

PRIVATE PACT VALID SAYS SUPREME COURT

Washington Segregation Case Dismissed by High- est Tribunal Will Have Vital Effect

Washington, May 24.—The right of white residents of Washington to enter into indentures or agreements of property to persons of Negro blood was sustained today by the United States Supreme Court in a decision delivered by Associate Justice Sanford.

The effect of the judgment is to give legal sanction to practices established by white residents of the national capital to exclude Negroes from certain neighborhoods.

The Court dismissed for want of jurisdiction a case in which parties sought an appeal from decisions of the District courts, which had enjoined conveyance of real estate because of an indenture or agreement of property which the injunction in force and prohibits the sale of a residence in the northwest section of Washington to a woman named in the record as having Negro blood.

The case of Curtis vs. Buckley attracted attention because of the prospect that the decision might have vital effect on racial segregation laws in operation in many states. It was a suit in equity filed by Mr. Buckley in the District Supreme Court against Mrs. Corrigan and Mrs. Curtis to enjoin the conveyance of real estate from one of the defendants to the other.

The record discloses that in 1921 several white persons, including Mr. Buckley and Mrs. Corrigan, executed an indenture under which it was agreed that no real estate tracts in this city should ever be used or occupied by, or sold, leased or given to, any person of the Negro race. This agreement was to run for twenty-one years.

Mr. J. A. Wisdom spent Thursday out on Powell Valley road at "Mammy Inn." He reports a fine time. Mr. Wisdom said that Mrs. Jeanne Myers and Mrs. Etta Sims, employees there, spared no means in making his stay a pleasant one.

"MATT HENSON WAS RIGHT"

St. Louis, Mo., June 4.—According to an editorial in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, "Matt Henson was Right."

The editorial follows:

The report of the Amundsen expedition that they found only ice and water at the North Pole should cause Matt Henson a pleased smile. Henson, the Negro who was at the pole with Peary, said in an interview a while back: "I'll eat all the ground they find around the pole." He explained his reasons with little scientific terminology but with much common sense and practical judgment, based on 20 years experience in the Arctic.

"The current are too swift around the pole for it to be land-locked," Henson said. "Admiral Peary and I drifted 60 miles in 24 hours on an ice pack. We noticed, too, that the ice shored and hummocked much more than it would if there were land underneath or if the ice fields were crossed had been tied somewhere to land." Perhaps the Peary expedition will make a broader survey than Peary and Henson did. It is still possible that land may be found. But for the time being we tie in with Matt Henson. The fabled "lost continent" of the Arctic wastes is a pleasant conjecture, yet all indications point to water and not land.

TWELVE RACES REPRESENT- ED AT AFTERNOON TEA

Reprinted from the Daily Journal of May 31, 1926, Portland, Oregon.

Nearly 200 persons, representing at least a dozen different nationalities, attended the inter-racial, international tea given Sunday afternoon from 2:30 to 5:30 o'clock by Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Cannady at their home No. 520 East 26th Street north.

The special guests were Louis Gregory, traveler and lecturer of Washington, D. C., and William Pickens, of New York, field secretary of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People.

This is one of a series of teas given frequently on Sunday afternoons at the Cannady residence, at least six having been held during the present year. The purpose is to bring about a better understanding between races and religious elements, as a part of the general movement to establish world peace.

The afternoon's program included talks by both the guests of honor, Albert R. Vail of Chicago and Mrs. Mae Maxwell of Moscow, Rev. John F. Moreland, pastor of Zion A. M. E. church; Mrs. Nathan Harris, George P. Eisman of the city school board; Mrs. J. J. Handsaker, and Professor Sell of the chair of Sociology, Reed college; and the Rev. Lemuel A. of the Japanese Methodist mission.

M. R. Sato, Japanese, gave selections on the Japanese native flute, and was introduced by Ken Nakazawa, Japanese poet. Piano selections were given by Miss Nellie Franklin and Mrs. Jessie Edwards; Mrs. F. M. Jasper sang a group of Swiss songs; Mr. R. Ahn, Korean, sang "The Holy City" in his native tongue, and Professor Woodfin gave a piano selection he had composed for this special event. All of the singers were accompanied by Mrs. Olliver Wickersham.

The nationalities or races represented at this unique tea included: Negro, Japanese, Chinese, Korean, German, Swiss, French, Spanish, Assyrian, Armenian, Greek, and American. The religious represented were the Hebrew, Bahai, Roman Catholic, and various branches of the Protestant churches.

Among others who appeared on the program were: Rev. M. Jasper of Woodstock Community church and Miss White who accompanied Mrs. Jasper; Mr. J. A. Ewing, president of the local branch of the N. A. A. C. P.; Rev. E. C. Dyer, pastor of Mt. Olivet Baptist church; George Orr Latimer, and the host.

QUAKERS ENJOY DINNER WITH NEGROES

(From "The Friend", April 29, 1926)

A most enjoyable dinner of one hundred Negroes was given by one hundred Quakers at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, in Philadelphia, on Fourth month 6th. Henry T. Brown presided, and Wilbur K. Thomas and Rufus Jones contributed in their remarks to the spirit of concord which was the keynote of the meeting. The race problem was forgotten in the pleasure of friendly intercourse, and the good will which Friends believe is the greatest need in creating constructive society was in ample evidence on both sides.

American ideals of freedom and opportunity were forcefully put before the meeting by Nannie Burroughs, of the National Training School, who said that Negroes want only a chance to learn and to earn, and that if they could not live up to the ideals set by the founders of the republic they should not call themselves Americans. "The Negro isn't a problem," she said, "he's a man. A problem you treat in three ways: you try to work it, or you dislike it, or you don't understand it. Now the Negro doesn't mind working, but he hates to be worked; there are lots of people who dislike him and more don't understand him. All he wants is to be treated like an ordinary human being. What we need in solving the race question is more light and less heat."

The next colored speaker was Edward W. Henry, Magistrate of the Fifth District Court of Philadelphia, who told something of his experience on the bench. There was more distress and crime in Philadelphia than he would have believed possible, he said; he learned the value of having a social worker connected with the court, to deal with young boys brought in for the first time. Shelters for homeless men were rare outside the police station, many of them charging admission and others not open to colored men. He suggested that the guests might enjoy visiting one bright spot, an open dormitory at Fifty-eighth and Market.

In listening to Edward Henry people forgot that they were white or colored, and came together as citizens to face the common problem of poverty and crime.

"In the lighter vein, but wistful and dignified, were some recitations from Paul Dabur's poems, given by a colored graduate of the Philadelphia School of Eloquence and Expression. No colored gathering is complete without music, and no songs are as dear to American audiences as Negro spirituals, so it was with the greatest pleasure that hosts and guests listened to the quartet of the East Calvary Methodist Church; the singers were encored many times.

Many of the guests have come from our guests. Friends will be interested in the following:

"Please be good enough to tender to your committee our heart-felt appreciation for the very interesting and helpful entertainment afforded on the occasion of the get-acquainted dinner."—Daniel W. Chase.

"There are so many very fine people in the world and when their fineness can be radiated so that others may feel it and express it, the bond of brotherhood cannot fail to be developed and substantiate the Fatherhood of God."—Ernest Hall Sandicize.

"The inspiring talks and friendly atmosphere made me realize that some persons, as Dr. Jones suggested, truly seek hearts and not faces."—Susan T. Reynolds.

Natives Not of Colored Blood, But of Spanish or French Ancestry

(Preston News Service)

The ire of many a "Creole" has been provoked because the innocent tourist thinks the word means "of colored blood."

"Creole," the native Orleansian will tell you, means "of French and Spanish." The Creole is one who is born a way from his country—whatever that country may be. The New Orleans Creole is considered the city's finest product. The women are lovely. The men are brave. They have charming manners. They are exclusive. They are classish. They have their own language, their own society, and their own customs.

The New Orleans Creole speaks a pure French. The reason "Creole" has been misunderstood is because their slaves spoke the Creole dialect, bearing about the same relation to pure French as the Southern Negro talk does to English purely spoken. There was the Arcadian French, the white and French, as spoken in the outlying districts of Louisiana. And "Gumbo" French—that means simply French incorrectly spoken.

ARKANSAS WHITES STAGE A LYNCHING

(Preston News Service)

Wilson, Ark. June 4.—Albert Blazes charged with attacking a white girl, aged 22, was taken from officers last Thursday night by a mob of several hundred persons and hanged.

Sheriff Haas, who with two deputies was guarding Blazes in a warehouse here, said that it was impossible to keep the mob from taking the prisoner. He said that after hanging the man the members of the mob returned to town quietly and "went to bed."

Officers had intended to take Blazes to Osceola Friday for safe keeping. Following the attack which occurred when the victim and two girl companions strayed from a school the last few years, a school was made every night to make my stay a delightful one.

I was able to visit Chicago as I was just returning from our national Near East conference in Cresco, Pa., where, for three days, we discussed the problems connected with the securing of funds for completing the work of caring for more than 25,000 children who still remain to us of the 130,000 children whom we have been privileged to save from death during the last few years.

There was a general feeling at the conference that we had laid a foundation for a great future work in the Near East and while the work had been great in its scope, it was these countless throngs from death, yet probably the greatest work would be done in the next few years as we train these children for useful places in the world in which they find themselves.

Salisbury, N. C. June 4.—Livingstone College, well known institution held its 44th annual commencement last week. Prominent among the white and Negro faces brought here for the annual events. The baccalaureate sermon Monday was by Bishop E. D. W. Jones, of Washington, D. C. W. J. Trent, the new president of Livingstone was inaugurated Tuesday afternoon.

Washington, D. C. June 3.—Reconsideration of confirmation of Hon. James A. Cobb, as judge of the municipal court, laid over from last Friday for action in the Senate, was again postponed after a brief executive session Tuesday.

It is understood that Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, who obtained the reconsideration, will not filibuster the confirmation over to next session of Congress.

ALABAMA PRISON UNDER CONVICT RULE

Birmingham, Ala., June 4.—According to reports of the grand jury findings in connection with prison conditions in Alabama, three life term convicts ruled as monarchs over their fellow inmates, and much of the inhuman and brutal treatment the convicts received is said to be due largely to a system under which the men worked.

It is said that one Negro convict was rendered temporarily blind, by the use of the "strap" a club, blows over his head and was forced to continue at work despite his condition. It is said that "straw bosses" gave the indiscriminate floggings to the convicts, the report said.

The report said that Dr. Robbins, physician at the Flat Top Camp, was on hand each morning when the men entered the mines, but left immediately to attend his private practice, leaving Homer Anderson to attend those who became ill or were hurt in his absence. Anderson, the report said, often performed "operations" on injured convicts and frequently amputated severely bruised fingers. Anderson was a life term.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Bragg were among Portlanders who attended the grand ball in Seattle Monday night.

NEAR EAST DIRECTOR MEETS PROMINENT COLORED MEN

J. J. Handsaker of Portland Meets Editors Lawyers and Business Men of Race.

Portland, Ore. June 1, 1926

Mrs. E. D. Cannady, Associate Editor of The Advocate, Macleay Building, Portland, Ore.

Dear Mrs Cannady:

Through your kindness in furnishing me letters of introduction to friends of yours in Chicago, I had the pleasure of meeting two or three there who made my recent visit to that city most pleasant.

I spent an hour in the office of Mr. Robert S. Abbott took much time to show me not only his splendid plant, but also to reveal in many ways in which I was much more interested, the spirit of the paper. He told me how the institution had been built up from nothing, of his ideals for it, and of how the color line is not drawn in any way on his staff, and that both white and colored employees work together harmoniously to produce a paper, the circulation of which is largely confined to the colored people.

One very pleasant incident of my visit there was meeting young William Duncan Allen of Rose City Park, Portland, who was at Oberlin, where he is studying music, for a short vacation.

At the close of an exceedingly busy day, Mr. Earl B. Dickerson, assistant prosecuting attorney, gave me no little time and discussed with me some of the problems which he and other law enforcement agents are trying to solve in that city so largely given to crime. With many others, he feels that poverty is a fruitful cause of crime and the elimination of this untoward situation, but fair wages and better living conditions will help to lessen these criminal conditions.

I was impressed by his thoughtful attitude and his confidence in me. He sometimes visit the coast where it would be a pleasure to introduce him to others who are like minded.

I also met Dr. Overton, the President of the Overton Hygienic Manufacturing Company, who told me I was too late to meet your brother-in-law, Mr. James Edwin Stamps, who had just left the office. All of these made every effort to make my stay a delightful one.

There was a general feeling at the conference that we had laid a foundation for a great future work in the Near East and while the work had been great in its scope, it was these countless throngs from death, yet probably the greatest work would be done in the next few years as we train these children for useful places in the world in which they find themselves.

Each afternoon during his stay in Portland, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Latimer, 397 E. 38th St., North, Dr. Vail conducted a class in methods of Spiritual teaching.

A multiplicity of engagements in three city prevented Dr. Vail from filling an engagement for him to address Prof. Laughlin's Sociology classes at Willamette University, Salem, Oregon on Wednesday. A trip over the Columbia River Highway; to Reed College and several other engagements completed Mr. Vail's busy stay in Portland, and he stated before leaving the city Friday night for Seattle, that Portland and surrounding districts are the most beautiful he has ever seen during his world travels.

Dr. Vail received his A. B. degree from the Univ. of Chicago; his Doctor of Divinity from Harvard. For 12 years he pastored a church at the University of Illinois. He is an author and contributor of articles to various magazines.

NOTED TEACHER AND AUTHOR HAS BUSY STAY IN THE CITY

Noted among visitors in Portland this week was Dr. Albert R. Vail of Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Vail arrived in the city Sunday morning from San Francisco, California where he remained for two weeks after the close of the 18th Annual Convention of the Bahai's of the United States and Canada, held in that city, recently.

On Sunday evening he spoke at the First Congregational Church upon "The Oneness of Mankind."

Monday evening Dr. Vail gave an address at Newberg, Oregon in Pacific College Auditorium upon "The Oneness of Mankind and Some Untried Paths to Universal Peace." He spoke of the Bahai program presented 60 years ago by Baha'ullah from his prison in Acca inviting the nations to call a Universal Conference for the establishment of an International Court of arbitration, for the simultaneous limitation of armaments and the establishment of the principles of universal arbitration. He suggested also that this world court consider a universal language to be taught in all the schools in the world with the mother tongue, as an aid to the Universal Peace. He laid down the following principles: Universal campaign of education in arts, sciences, and the oneness of mankind; the harmonizing of science and religion; the establishment of perfect equality between men and women; closer co-operation between capital and labor and the recognition of the underlying unity of all existing faiths.

Tuesday he spoke at the Metaphysical Library upon "The City of Immortality and the Gate Thereto," at the close of which Dr. Vail was rushed to the Portland Hotel where he broadcasted from station KOIN, upon the subject of "World Organization of the Most Great Peace."

Wednesday evening he spoke at the First Congregational Church upon "Dr. H. E. Ingham, 1181 Harold Avenue upon Bahai Principles for World Peace." Thursday evening he gave a lecture at the Metaphysical Library under the auspices of the Bahai Assembly upon "The Most Successful Persons in Human History." He showed that the most influential, powerful and beneficent rulers have been, not its kings and its generals, but its great prophets, for they have swayed, guided, educated, and united the lives of untold millions of people. The dominion of Napoleon lasted for two decades, while the dominion of Christ, for nineteen centuries, the Kings and rulers of India rise and fall and are forgotten but the Buddha illumines and purifies and upholds the lives of perhaps a third of the human race for twenty five centuries. Mongol Dynasties rise and fall and are no more, but Confucius sits upon a everlasting throne "the uncrowned King of ten thousand kingdoms." He then showed how this same kind of prophetic influence is being met in our time; its illuminating power in the great Bahai teachers, Baha'ullah and Abdul Baha and through them the Holy Spirit has united a great multitude of Christians, Jews, Mohammedans, Buddhists, Confucians, and the members of all races, into a great spiritual brotherhood that already grows around the world. And thus these great Bahai Educators are training a great multitude in the life of Universal Service. Universal love, universal brotherhood, universal peace, universal love as it is taught and made manifest by the great prophet who not only proclaims the truth but in his life, is the truth.
