Bassett, Rev. James. Persia: Land of the Imams. New York, 1886.

American Presbyterian missionary, Tíhrán, 1871–85. See pp. 77, 213–14, 229, 297–300, 338. Refers to the large number of Bábís in the vicinity of Sabzivar and to meeting two of their “missionaries” there. States that “Mirza Hosein Ale, ... confined at Akka, ... professed to be the Bab, and is very generally recognised by all who now hold the tenets of that sect in Persia.”

_____. Persia: Eastern Mission. Philadelphia, 1890.

See pp. 51, 182–3. Refers to the martyrdom of Mullá Kázim-i Talkhunchiní in Isfahan, and to being visited by “Baubes” in Tíhrán.

Bible Society Monthly Reporter. London: British and Foreign Bible Society.

Bliss, Rev. Edwin Elisha. “Bab and Babism.” Missionary Herald. Vol. 65 (1869) pp. 164–68.

American ABCFM missionary, Istanbul, 1856–92. Contains important references to the Bábí-Bahá’í community in Adrianople and their exile to ‘Akká. “So far as can be judged by the utterances of this leader at Adrianople, Babism is an attempt to mix Mohammedanism and Christianity. ... In a word and in the language of this leading man, they would ‘break down the middle wall of partition between the Moslem and the Christian, and teach all to live together in love.’”

Browne, Edward G. and Nicholson, Reynold A. A Descriptive Catalogue of the Oriental Manuscripts belonging to the late E. G. Browne. Cambridge University Press, 1932.

Church Missionary Gleaner. London: Church Missionary Society, 1874–1921.

Church Missionary Intelligencer. London: Church Missionary Society, 1849–1906.

Church Missionary Review (continuation of Church Missionary Intelligencer). London: Church Missionary Society, 1907–1927.

Church Missionary Society. Annual Letter. London: Printed privately, (annually).

Curzon, George N. Persia and the Persian Question. London: Longmans, Green & Co., 1892.

Easton, Rev. Peter Z. “The Babis of Persia.” Missionary Review of the World. Vol. 17 (Jun. 1894) pp. 451–53.

American Presbyterian missionary, Iran. What can only be described as a vituperative attack describing Babism as “this devilish, this satanic system.” “There is no need of wasting any sympathy on the sufferings of the Babis ... the Babis richly deserve all they have been called upon to suffer.”

_____. “Wahabiism and Babism: Bibliography.” Missionary Review of the World. Vol. 17 (Jul. 1894) pp. 529–30.

Similar to the above in tone. “It is an atheistic system which makes use of religion as a mask to cover its infamous designs.”

Easton also wrote two articles during ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s tour of the West. These appeared in English Churchman and Evangelical Christendom. See Balyuzi, ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’, pp. 149–51. I have not seen these.

Elder, Dr. Earl E. “The Moral and Spiritual Situation in Iran.” Moslem World. Vol. 38 (1948) pp. 100–112.

Refers to the spate of activity coinciding with centenary of the Declaration of the Báb, and the defection of some leading Bahá’ís: Áváríh, Níkú, etc. Criticizes the dictatorial nature of Bahá’í Administration.

_____ and Miller, Dr. W. M. Al-Kitab al-Aqdas or The Most Holy Book. London: Royal Asiatic Society, 1961.

A literal, and therefore awkward, translation prefaced by an essay by Miller which is based almost entirely on Browne’s works.

Frame, Dr. J. Davidson. “Baháism in Persia.” Moslem World. Vol. 2 (1912) pp. 236–44.

American Presbyterian medical missionary, Rasht. Equates Bahá’í teachings with pantheism. Describes Bahá’í propaganda efforts.

Griffith, M. E. Hume. Behind the Veil in Persia and Turkish Arabia. London: Seeley, 1909.

British CMS missionary, Yazd and Kerman. See pp. 116–19. An account based on Browne, together with some details of an episode during the Yazd persecutions.

Jessup, Dr. Henry Harris. “The Religious Mission of the English-Speaking Nation.” In The World’s Parliament of Religions, ed. by Rev. John Henry Barrows. Chicago: Parliament Publishing Co., 1893.

American Presbyterian missionary, Beirut, 1860–1909. See Vol. 2, pp. 1122–26. A sympathetic early reference to the Bahá’í which stands in marked contrast to his later writings. Quotes Browne’s interview with Bahá’u’lláh.

_____. “The Babites.” Outlook (New York). (Jun. 1901) pp. 454–56.

Tries to derive Bahá’í teachings from those of the Nusayrís (an extremist Lebanese Shí’í sect). Records his discordant interview with ‘Abdu’l-Bahá.

_____. "Babism and the Babites." Missionary Review of the World. Vol. 25 (Oct. 1902) pp. 771–75.

Condensed from the above article.

_____. Fifty-Three Years in Syria. London: Fleming H. Revell Co., 1910.

See vol. 1, p. 329 and vol. 2, pp. 605, 636–38, 687–88. Records the receipt by the American consul in Beirut of a petition on behalf of Bahá'u'lláh from his followers in Baghdad in June 1867. Several references to his meetings with Bahá'ís and with 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

Jewish Intelligence. London Society for Promoting Christianity Among the Jews.

Jewish Missionary Herald. London: British Society for the Propagation of Christianity Among the Jews.

Layard, Austen H. Early Adventures in Persia, Susiana, and Babylonia. New Edition. London, 1894.

Linton, Bishop J. H. Persian Sketches. London: Church Missionary Society, 1923.

British CMS missionary and later second Anglican Bishop of Persia. See pp. 99–100.

Malcolm, Rev. Napier. Five Years in a Persian Town. London: John Murray, 1905.

British CMS missionary, Yazd and Shiraz, 1898–1907. See pp. 44, 52, 61–62, 79, 81, 86–95, 104, 108, 113–14, 138–40, 155–57, 186–87, 212. Much information about the Yazd upheaval of 1903.

Methods of Mission Work Among Moslems. New York: F. H. Revell Co., 1906.

Miller, Dr. William McElwee. Baha'ism, Its Origin, History and Teachings. New York: Fleming H. Revell Co., 1931.

American Presbyterian missionary, Iran, 1919–1962. Standard Christian anti-Bahá'í polemic, heavily dependent on Browne's works.

_____. "The Bahá'í Cause Today." Moslem World. Vol. 30 (1940) pp. 379–404.

A survey of Bahá'í history and teachings, followed by a review of Stanwood Cobb's Security for a Failing World and Miller's answer to the challenge of the Bahá'í religion.

_____. "The Religious Situation in Iran." Moslem World. Vol. 40 (1951) pp. 79–87.

_____. The Baha'i Faith: Its History and Teachings. South Pasadena, Cal.: William Carey Library, 1974.

Standard Christian anti-Bahá'í polemic, building on the works of Wilson, Richards and the author's previous writings but bringing them up to date. Much new material is based on letters from a grandson of Mírzá Yahyá (Suhb-i Azal).

_____. What is the Bahá'í Faith? Grand Rapids, Mich.: Eerdmans, 1977.

And abridgement of the above work by William N. Wysham.

Missionary Review of the World. New York.

Momen, Moojan. The Bábí and Bahá'í Religions: Some Contemporary Western Accounts. Oxford: George Ronald, 1981.

Pfeiffer, Ida. A Woman's Journey Round the World. London, 1856.

Phelps, Myron. Life and Teachings of Abbas Effendi. New York and London: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1903.

Preaching and Healing. London.

Rice, Clara Colliver. Mary Bird in Persia. London: Church Missionary Society, 1916.

British CMS missionary, Iran. See pp. 37–40, 71, 107, 143, 191.

A reasonable account with emphasis on social teachings.

_____. Persian Women and Their Ways. London: Seeley, Service & Co., 1923.

See pp. 21, 24, 155–56, 275–76. Describes the challenge that the Bahá'ís presented to the missionaries, with special reference to women.

Rice, Rev. W. A. "A Babi Pamphlet." Church Missionary Intelligencer (Aug. 1902) pp. 564–73.

British CMS missionary, Iran. See above.

Richards, Bishop John R. "Bahaism in Persia Today." Moslem World. Vol. 31 (1931) pp. 344–51.

British CMS missionary, Iran. Emphasizes the distinction between the Bábís and the Bahá'ís. States that the Bahá'í Faith is the "gate that leads to Materialism."

_____. The Religion of the Baha'is. London: Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge and New York: Macmillan Co., 1932.

Standard Christian anti-Bahá'í polemic, heavily dependent on Browne's writings in the early part of the book. Interestingly, the author takes great pains to disprove Ruth White's allegations concerning 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Will and Testament.

_____. Baha'ism. London, 1965.

The main arguments of the above book in pamphlet form.

Sell, Canon Edward. The Bab and the Babis. From the Christian College Magazine. Madras, 1895.

_____. Bahaism. The Islam Series. Madras, 1912.

These two booklets by the same author offer an interesting contrast. The first, written in 1895 when the Bahá'ís posed no threat to Christianity, is a straightforward account based on Browne's writings. The second, written in 1912 when Christians in North America and Europe were becoming Bahá'ís, contains much polemical material.

Shedd, Rev. J. H. "Babism: Its Doctrine and Relation to Mission Work." The Missionary Review of the World. Vol. 17 (Dec. 1894) pp. 894–904.

American Presbyterian missionary, Urúmíyyih. A general account, with special reference to mission work.

_____. "Bahaism and Its Claims." The Missionary Review of the World. Vol. 34 (Oct. 1911) pp. 727–34.

Shoghi Effendi. God Passes By. Wilmette, Ill.: Bahá'í Publishing Trust, 1944 (1965).

Speer, Rev. Robert E. Missions and Modern History. New York: Fleming H. Revell Co., 1904.

Secretary of the American Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. See vol. 1, pp. 121–82. Includes quotations from many of the American missionaries in Iran.

Stern, Rev. Henry Aaron. Dawnings of Light in the East. London, 1854.

German missionary of the London Society for Promoting Christianity Among the Jews, Baghdad and Iran, 1844–1853. See above.

Stileman, Bishop Charles Harvey. "A Week with the Babis." Church Missionary Intelligencer. (Jul. 1893) pp. 512–16.

An account of the writers visit to Najafábád and his meetings with the Bahá'ís there.

Sulaymání, Azízu'lláh. Masabihy-i Hidáyat. Vol. 4. Tíhrán, 118 Badí' (1961).

Waterfield, Robin E. Christians in Persia: Assyrians, Armenians, Roman Catholics and Protestants. London: Allen and Unwin, 1973.

White, Dr. Henry. "How Babis Died for Their Faith in Persia." Mercy and Truth (1903) pp. 275–76.

British CMS medical missionary, Yazd, 1898–1922. An account of the Yazd upheaval of 1903 which the author witnessed.

Wilson, Dr. Samuel Graham. Persian Life and Customs. New York, 1895.

American Presbyterian missionary, Tabriz, 1880–1916. See pp. 62, 146, 185–86, 221. Brief references.

_____. “Babism: A Failure.” Missionary Review of the World. Vol. 27 (1904) pp. 91–97, 207–211.

Perhaps the worst example of Christian anti-Bahá’í polemic.

Contains many wildly inaccurate statements.

_____. Bahaism and Its Claims. New York: Fleming H. Revell Co., 1915.

Described by Browne as “a hostile critical study,” this book set the pattern for most later examples of Christian anti-Bahá’í polemic. Heavily dependent on Browne’s writings. Most of the book was published as separate articles in a variety of journals as listed below.

_____. “Bahaism and Religious Assassination.” Moslem World. Vol. 4 (1914) pp. 231–45.

Modified form of chapter 10 of his book.

_____. “Claims of Bahaism.” East and West. Vol. 47 (Jul. 1914) pp. 249–70.

_____. “Bahaism and the Woman Question.” Missionary Review of the World. Vol. 37 (1914) pp. 739–45, 915–19.

Modified form of chapter 7 of his book.

_____. “Bahaism and Its Relation to the State.” Church Missionary Review (1915) pp. 19–26.

Chapter 6 of his book.

_____. “Bahaism: An Anti-Christian System.” Bibliotheca Sacra. Vol. 72 (Jan. 1915) pp. 1–22.

Chapter 4 of his book.

_____. “Bahaism and Religious Deception.” Moslem World. Vol. 5 (1915) pp. 166–84.

Modified form of chapter 8 of his book.

_____. “Bahaism: Its Failure in Moral Conduct.” Moslem World. Vol. 5 (1915) pp. 268–82.

Modified form of chapter 9 of his book.

_____. “The Bayan of the Bab.” Princeton Theological Review. Vol. 13 (1915) pp. 633–54.

A review of Nicolas’ translation of the Persian Bayán.

Wishard, Dr. John G. Twenty Years in Persia. New York: F. H. Revell, 1909.

American Presbyterian medical missionary, Tihrán. See pp. 162–67.

Wood, M. M. Glimpses of Persia. London: Church Missionary Society, 1922.

British CMS missionary. See pp. 30, 76.

Wright, Dr. Austin H. “Bab and Seine Secte in Persien.” Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morgenlandischen Gesellschaft. Vol. 5 (1851) pp. 384–85.

Important as the earliest attempt to write a serious scholarly account of the new religion.

Wright, Denis. The English Among the Persians. London: Heinemann, 1977.
