

The Singapore Bahá'í Studies Review

---

2000 - Volume 5, Number 1

MITA (P) 195/04/2000

Chinese Culture and its Future Place amongst the World's Spiritual Traditions

Papers

Brothers and Sisters: Buddhism in the Family of Chinese Religion
Phyllis Ghim-Lian Chew

Heaven in China without "Religion" and Manifestation
Theo A. Cope

Chinese Religions: Evolution, Compatibility and Adaptability
A Historical Perspective
Kow Mei Kao

The Future of Confucianism
Yeo Yew Hock

The Challenge of Change for the Chinese in SEA
Yin Hong Shuen

Science and Religion in Chinese Culture
Anjam Khursheed

---

The Singapore Bahá'í Studies Review

---

2000 - Volume 5, Number 1
195/04/2000

MITA (P)

Chinese Culture and its Future Place Amongst the World's Spiritual Traditions

Journal of the Association for Bahá'í Studies
Singapore

The views expressed in this journal do not necessarily reflect those of the Association, nor are they authoritative renderings of Bahá'í belief.

Printed by
Radiant Press
Singapore

© Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Singapore, 2000.
All rights reserved.

Contents

Note from editor	1
Papers
Brothers and Sisters: Buddhism in the Family of Chinese Religion Phyllis Ghim-Lian Chew	3
Heaven in China without "Religion" and Manifestation Theo A. Cope	33
Chinese Religions: Evolution, Compatibility and Adaptability A Historical Perspective Kow Mei Kao	63
The Future of Confucianism Yeo Yew Hock	87
The Challenge of Change for the Chinese in SEA Yin Hong Shuen	109
Science and Religion in Chinese Culture Anjam Khursheed	125
Biographical Data of Authors	169
Obituary	171
Antonella Khursheed (1958-2000)

Note from Editor

The annual Association for Bahá'í Studies conference this year, held on the 17th April, focused on the theme of "Chinese culture and its future place amongst the world's spiritual traditions". Some of the talks presented at the conference inspired the papers that appear in this volume. This volume is the first Singapore Bahá'í Studies Review issue to focus on Chinese culture.

We also include an obituary for our beloved Antonella, secretary of our Singapore Bahá'í Studies group, who passed away in a tragic motorway accident in Italy on July 30th of this year. Words cannot express our sorrow and sense of loss. This is the first issue of the Singapore Bahá'í Studies Review that has not been desktop published by Antonella. In a short obituary published here, we give tribute to a remarkable person, someone who will be deeply missed by us all.

I would like to thank Ing Ing Sahadevan and Lynette Thomas for their copy- editing.

Anjam Khursheed
December, 2000